DuraServ Deepens Midwest Expansion with AE Door & Window Acquisition

This latest partnership expands the product offerings available to homeowners in Ohio, Kentucky, and Indiana

CARROLLTON, Texas, Feb. 21, 2025—DuraServ LLC, a leading provider of commercial, industrial, and residential overhead door and loading dock equipment, maintenance, repair, and installation services, today announced the acquisition of AE Door & Window (AE) with offices across the Tri-State area.

Since 2001, DuraServ has grown into a market-leading business that has expanded beyond commercial and industrial segments with the addition of residential offerings. "AE brings a unique suite of offerings to the residential market, powered by a smart roster of partner suppliers," said David Iliff, Chief Executive Officer of DuraServ. "This vertically integrated strategy has proven to be a successful industry best practice that will undoubtedly increase as part of the broader DuraServ residential market strategy."

DuraServ puts people first by fostering a culture of trust, demonstrating genuine care, and building authentic relationships. "It was important to keep the family atmosphere which has been an integral part of our 45-year history," said Adam Weber, who served as President of AE Door & Window. "Bringing together our strong history of residential and DuraServ's unparalleled expertise in commercial is a concept everyone can be excited about."

Founded in 1980 by Bill Weber, he grew the company from its humble early years working out of his house into a thriving multi-state business. As part of this new partnership, Bill is leaving the business in the hands of his son Adam Weber, who will now assume the position of Senior Vice President, Residential and contribute as a key leader on strategy for DuraServ. Under Adam's guidance, the team will continue to drive an unwavering commitment to be the most trusted sales and service provider.
